

WHAT HAPPENS IN ARIZONA

STOPS

in ARIZONA ACLU

On April 23, 2010, Arizona governor Jan Brewer signed into law a discriminatory and un-American law that will require police officers in Arizona to ask people for their papers based only on some undefined "reasonable suspicion" that they are in the country unlawfully. This extreme law puts Arizona completely out of step with American values of fairness and equality.

ARIZONA SAYS SHOW US YOUR PAPERS.
WE'LL SHOW THEM THE CONSTITUTION.

Take personal action to challenge the law. Learn about it, talk about it, share your concern and the facts with your friends, colleagues, and family.

LEARN MORE: www.aclu.org/stopazlaw

CUT HERE

WHAT HAPPENS IN ARIZONA

STOPS

in ARIZONA ACLU

On April 23, 2010, Arizona governor Jan Brewer signed into law a discriminatory and un-American law that will require police officers in Arizona to ask people for their papers based only on some undefined "reasonable suspicion" that they are in the country unlawfully. This extreme law puts Arizona completely out of step with American values of fairness and equality.

ARIZONA SAYS SHOW US YOUR PAPERS.
WE'LL SHOW THEM THE CONSTITUTION.

Take personal action to challenge the law. Learn about it, talk about it, share your concern and the facts with your friends, colleagues, and family.

LEARN MORE: www.aclu.org/stopazlaw

WHAT HAPPENS IN ARIZONA

STOPS

in ARIZONA ACLU

On April 23, 2010, Arizona governor Jan Brewer signed into law a discriminatory and un-American law that will require police officers in Arizona to ask people for their papers based only on some undefined "reasonable suspicion" that they are in the country unlawfully. This extreme law puts Arizona completely out of step with American values of fairness and equality.

ARIZONA SAYS SHOW US YOUR PAPERS.
WE'LL SHOW THEM THE CONSTITUTION.

Take personal action to challenge the law. Learn about it, talk about it, share your concern and the facts with your friends, colleagues, and family.

LEARN MORE: www.aclu.org/stopazlaw

WHAT HAPPENS IN ARIZONA

STOPS

in ARIZONA ACLU

On April 23, 2010, Arizona governor Jan Brewer signed into law a discriminatory and un-American law that will require police officers in Arizona to ask people for their papers based only on some undefined "reasonable suspicion" that they are in the country unlawfully. This extreme law puts Arizona completely out of step with American values of fairness and equality.

ARIZONA SAYS SHOW US YOUR PAPERS.
WE'LL SHOW THEM THE CONSTITUTION.

Take personal action to challenge the law. Learn about it, talk about it, share your concern and the facts with your friends, colleagues, and family.

LEARN MORE: www.aclu.org/stopazlaw