[redacted] said he is currently on a hunger strike along with several other detainees. [redacted] because of the mistreatment of another detainee. He will be on the hunger strike for a minimum of forty days. During this time they will only eat apples and drink water. [redacted] call off the hunger strike [redacted] hunger strikes since he has been in GTMO.

[redacted] stated detainees only have three ways to bargain. He counted the ways as follows: One, they can refuse to eat. Two, they can refuse to drink fluids. Three they can refuse to talk. [redacted] has been here for [redacted] months and has a clear understanding on how to control the system to get his way.

He has also demonstrated this by controlling his interviews. [redacted] will start his prayer at the beginning of every interview. This is obviously a control tactic, because he is interviewed at different hours of the day which do not line up with the usual prayer times. If he is interrupted in anyway he will refuse to talk. The prayers may last a few minutes or hours. At the end of the interviews there are no guarantees that he will talk to the interviewers. He also set a pattern of only speaking every other time he is interviewed.
