

5 ft

— Will my mom remember me?

— another Birthday all by my self

— I don't know if I'll ever be home again

— I cry myself to sleep at night

4 ft

— I feel sad all the time

— they took my mom and dad

For hundreds of separated children, the pain is still growing.

This Mother's Day, hundreds of children remain separated from their mothers and thousands of others remain deeply traumatized from the family separations perpetrated by our own government. All told, more than 5,500 children have suffered an unimaginable trauma and deserve permanent legal status, immediate care, and resources to help them.

The American Civil Liberties Union is calling on the Biden administration to fulfill its promise and reunite these families.
